

Law: School Submissions: Queen's University

Let's review Queen's University's application.

Queen's law school has strengths in the areas of public law, criminal law, family law, international law, business law, employment and labour law, and legal theory. There are many study abroad and exchange program opportunities unique to Queen's. You have 6000 characters to demonstrate your intellectual curiosity, avid interest in law, social commitment, reasonable judgment and insight, leadership potential, teamwork skills, creative ability and innovative endeavors, self-discipline, time management skills, and maturity.

The Admissions Committee will review the personal statement, letters of reference and the autobiographical sketch to obtain information about these attributes.

Mature category applicants also need to submit a resume.