

Interview Activity Feedback – Tell me about yourself

Transcript

So this answer was really vague and not focused on the program that the student was applying to. It also indicated that she was not prepared for this kind of question and she was not able to think quickly on her feet. She did have a tendency to look around a lot and for some interviews that conveys dishonesty and it can become a little distracting and unfocused. The other thing she did a couple times was that she used the word “um” and “and” and that also can become distracting when it’s over done. Now, admission directors know that you will be nervous in a professional school interview and its okay for some of those natural tendencies to come across. Just try not to let it overtake your answer. She also was not dressed appropriately for the interview and it would have been better if she had tied back her hair, particularly for health-related professional school interviews. The next answer will give you a better indication on how to answer the question.
