I am Chantal Wall. I am a student advisor for students enrolled in Co-op or the EDGE certificate at the University of Waterloo. The University of Waterloo created this advisor position to ensure that students who experience bullying, harassment, or other negative behavior while on their work or experiential learning term know that they have somewhere to go for help. The University of Waterloo has a commitment to its students both on and off campus while engaged in university-related activities. When harassment occurs in a Co-op student's work term or EDGE work experience, the University of Waterloo has a responsibility to ensure that the student's complaint is handled competently. The advisors are trained to provide students with information and guidance in situations involving harassment in the workplace.
